PORTFOLIO N. —

Marc Turlan triture, abîme, esquinte son médium fétiche qu'est l'image. De l'image fixe à l'image animée, et par extension l'Image avec un i majuscule, l'artiste français déconstruit le médium photographique que Roland Barthes associait à la mort pour, justement, tenter de lui insuffler la vie. Et elles vivent les œuvres de Turlan. En collages ou en installation, elles sont brutes, parfois primaires, toujours sèches et sans compromis. Turlan éviscère l'image pour la réorganiser d'un petit chaos, il la met en abîme, la sous-titre, la cite. C'est narratif, insolemment plastique, corrosif comme des pages de Lautréamont.

Marc Turlan manipulates, reorganises and destroys his favourite medium, the image. From the fixed to the animated image, and by extension the Image with a capital i, the French artist deconstructs the photographic medium that Roland Barthes associates with death to, precisely, attempt to breathe life into him. And for sure, Turlan's work is living. Either collages or installations, they are raw, sometimes primary, always dry and uncompromising. Turlan eviscerates the image to reorganise it with a little chaos; he uses mise-en-abîme, the subtitle, the citation. It is narrative, insolently plastic and corrosive as the pages of Lautreamont.
